Statement of Intent

The University recognises that the efficient management of its records is necessary to support its core functions, to comply with its legal and regulatory obligations and to contribute to the effective overall management of the institution.

A Records Retention Schedule is an essential component of an efficient and effective records management system and properly developed and implemented, it protects the interests of the organisation and its stakeholders by ensuring that business records are kept for as long as they are needed to meet operational needs and to comply with legal requirements, and are then disposed of securely.

Benefits of effective records management practice

Good records management:

- Ensures that you can find the information you want at the time you need it;
- Saves staff time spent looking for information. Good records management should enable information to be retrieved quickly and reliably;
- Saves space - destroying information that is no longer required liberates space in the University;
- Reduces administration costs, both in staff time and storage.
- Enables timely responses and cost efficiency to information requests made to the University.
- Removes duplicates.
- Ensures that documents important to the University's history are retained for archive purposes.

What is a Records Retention Schedule?

A Records Retention Schedule is a control document that sets out the periods for which an organisation's business records should be retained to meet its operational needs and to comply with legal and other requirements. Legislation states that various specific records must be retained for specific periods of time. Failure by an educational establishment to comply may result in legal penalties for breach of the relevant regulation.

On the other hand, it is not expected from a legal perspective that all records should be retained indefinitely and there will be many instances where an institution must consider whether the retention of information is necessary or desirable. For example, under data protection legislation, personal data should not be held for longer than is necessary to fulfil the purpose for which it was obtained.

Educational establishments must therefore assess carefully the risks associated with retaining such information as well as the risks that may arise if it is destroyed.

Compliance with the Freedom of Information Act 2000 likewise requires the effective management of record retention by all public authorities. The controlled destruction of records according to a defined business process, as part of an agreed retention strategy, will ensure that only accurate, relevant and required information is retained. This will facilitate the retrieval and provision of requested information within the prescribed time limits.

The time periods given in this document are a general guide and so with good reason certain documents may be retained for longer periods, although it is recommended that such reasons are documented.

Staff should always take account of operational requirements for records before destruction.

General principles

- The retention periods in the Schedule apply only to designated official copies of the records concerned. Duplicates can usually be retained for a shorter period. It is vital to ensure that all duplicates are destroyed before (or at the same time as) the official copies, to ensure compliance with the requirements of the General Data Protection Regulation, the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and to protect the institution's interests generally.
- The retention periods given in the Schedule apply only to substantive records in each group. Almost all groups include working papers and other supporting materials which can usually be retained for a shorter period
- Original financial records should generally be kept for 6 years after the current financial year to comply with the Limitation Act 1980 and HM Customs & Excise Notice 700/21: Keeping [VAT] records and accounts. (NB the majority of such records will be maintained by the Finance Division and so local copies can be destroyed as soon as operational requirements cease, say one year after the current financial year.)
- Health and Safety records can be split between those records which are duplicates, the master being held by HR Wellbeing, and local records. As the former are held by HR Wellbeing, there is no requirement on Estates & Property Services staff to retain these, however the latter should be held in accordance with the guidance listed herein.
- Personnel Records – HR should retain the majority of master personnel records. However where records are held in the Division's Personal File, they should not be retained longer than indicated in the guidance below.
- Contracts under seal and their related negotiation, establishment and review documents should be kept for 12 years after the termination of the contract. Other contractual material should be retained for a minimum of six years after the termination of the contract.
- University policy and strategy documents should be retained according to legal or operational requirements, usually 10 years after being superseded.

- Audits and reviews of performance against plans and strategies should be retained for 10 years after the current academic year and then referred to the University Archives for review

Some records have no significant operational, informational or evidential value and can be destroyed as soon as they have served their primary purpose:

Examples:

- Announcements and notices of meetings and other events, and notifications of acceptance or apologies;
- Requests for, and confirmations of, reservations for internal services (e.g. meeting rooms, car parking spaces, pool cars) where no internal charges are made;
- Requests for, and confirmations of, reservations with third parties (e.g. travel, hotel accommodation, restaurants) when invoices have been received;
- Transmission documents: letters, FAX cover sheets, e-mail messages, routing slips, compliments slips and similar items which accompany documents but do not add any value to them;
- Superseded address lists, distribution lists etc.;
- Duplicate documents such as:
  - 'CC' and 'FYI' copies
  - Unaltered drafts
  - 'Snapshot' printouts or extracts from databases
  - 'Day Files' (chronological copies of correspondence)
- Personal diaries, address books etc.;
- Working papers, where the results have been written into an official document and which are not required to support it;
- Stocks of in-house publications which are obsolete, superseded or otherwise useless e.g. marketing materials, manuals, directories, forms, and other material produced for wide distribution.

For further guidance, please contact Information Governance at foi@salford.ac.uk

The retention periods given in this document are taken largely from the JISC Record Retention Schedule, which can be found at: <http://bcs.jiscinfonet.ac.uk/he/default.asp>

Deletion Guidance

Deleted means destroyed beyond the ability to recover the material i.e. hardcopy paper should be shredded. If large quantities of documents need to be destroyed, contact the Estates Building manager to arrange for confidential waste bags or 3rd party secure shredding (on or off campus). Hard copy personal data should not simply be disposed of via paper recycling.

Electronic data (held within University managed storage or systems) should be deleted as per documented processes. Wide scale deletion of electronic data may need to be discussed with the Digital IT application support team. Email correspondence should be deleted, then empty the deleted items folder (i.e. double delete). All University issued IT equipment (at end of life) should be disposed of via Digital IT to ensure it is securely erased. Storage to portable media e.g. USB drives should be deleted and passed to Digital IT for secure erasure and disposal.
